BUNYAN RELIC.

269 AMBROSE (ISAAC) PRIMA, THE FIRST THINGS, OR REGENERATION SERMONS, AND ULTIMA, THE LAST THINGS, in 1 vol., first title in MS., calf (rebacked) 1650

 THE MARGINS OF THE FIRST 72PP. HAVE NOTES IN THE HANDWRITING OF JOHN BUNYAN. On the reverse of the contents leaf is an old inscription, reading: "The Notes in the Magin [sic] were written by that valiant advocate for Truth, John Bunyan, while in Prison," and on another leaf (loose), the widow of Dr. Olinthus Gilbert Gregory (the mathematician, 1774-1841, who also wrote on Christian Evidences) has written, in June, 1842, an inscription that her husband fully believed in the authenticity of the notes. The writing has been compared with Bunyan's will and a page of the old Church Book, both of which are in Bunyan's autograph, and is identical. An examination of the character of the annotations offers the strongest internal evidence that Bunyan perused and annotated the volume. A former owner has cut away some portions of the notes for presentation to friends as relics.

Specimens of Bunyan's autograph are excessively rare, and are not represented in the British Museum collection.

CONDITIONS OF SALE.

FIRST.—The highest bidder to be the buyer; and if any dispute arise between two or more bidders, the lot in dispute shall be immediately put up again and re-sold, or not, as the auctioneer may decide, who is also to regulate the biddings and be the sole arbiter. The vendors reserve the right of bidding by themselves or agent, and of withdrawing any lot or lots.

SECOND.—The purchasers to give in their names and places of abode, and to pay down, if required, 5s. in the Pound, or more, in part of payment, or the whole of the purchase-money, in default of which the lot or lots so purchased to be immediately put up again and re-sold.

THIRD.—The lots are to be taken away and paid for, whether genuine and authentic or not, with all faults and errors of description, the day after the sale; Messrs. FOSTER not being responsible for the correct description, genuineness, or authenticity of any lot.

FOURTH.—To prevent inaccuracy in delivery and inconvenience in the settlement of the purchases, no lot can be transferred, nor can any lot be removed during the time of sale; such buyer must pay for the whole of his purchases before any lot is removed

FIFTH.—All lots uncleared within the time aforesaid may be re-sold by public or private sale, when and where the vendors think proper, without notice to the defaulter; and the deficiency (if any) and the expenses attending such re-sale, and any other loss the vendor may sustain, shall be made good by the defaulter, but this condition is without prejudice to the vendor enforcing the purchase, whether a deposit has been paid or not.

NOTE.—All lots remaining uncleared, by either Vendors or Purchasers, beyond three days from the day of sale, will be subject to a charge of 6*d. each per week for warehousing from the day of sale.*

CONDITIONS OF SALE.

FIRST.—The highest bidder to be the buyer; and if any dispute arise between two or more bidders, the lot in dispute shall be immediately put up again and re-sold, or not, as the auctioneer may decide, who is also to regulate the biddings and be the sole arbiter. The vendors reserve the right of bidding by themselves or agent, and of withdrawing any lot or lots.

SECOND.—The purchasers to give in their names and places of abode, and to pay down, if required, 5s. in the Pound, or more, in part of payment, or the whole of the purchase-money, in default of which the lot or lots so purchased to be immediately put up again and re-sold.

THIRD.—The lots are to be taken away and paid for, whether genuine and authentic or not, with all faults and errors of description, the day after the sale; Messrs. FOSTER not being responsible for the correct description, genuineness, or authenticity of any lot.

THE YOUNG COLLECTION.

ART OF TO-MORROW.

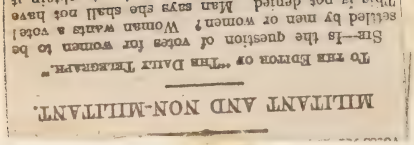
14 March 1913.

There has been a good deal of chat of late about university men in business. We saw an Old Blue sticking to his job yesterday at Christie's, as he has done, to our knowledge, for the past eighteen years. It is permissible to believe that for once in a while Mr. Lance Hannen was able to finish his work in the rostrum in time to reach the boat race. But he has often been in the box when inclination pulled him to the river-bank. The feature of the sale of the remaining portion of the famous Alexander Young collection was the ordeal of Mr. A. D. Peppercorn. As stated yesterday, the late patron greatly admired his works, and had garnered about 150 of them—and they are still caviare to the general It is the fate of all great art to be despised and rejected in the sale-room.

Now a dealer yesterday took a 'bus-driver's holiday. He had no Peppercorn clients, so he bought for himself, for his drawing-room, and for his cellar. When he had annexed thirty atmospheric studies he said: "I have bought half of the Peppercorns offered to-day. I shall put them away for ten years. Other believers have got the other thirty. They will be enough to make a market some day." That breezy auction champion of British art, Mr. Sampson, spoke thus. Degas was alive last year to see one of his £20 pictures fetch nearly £20,000. Admirers of Mr. Peppercorn will hope to witness his auction vindication. There is nothing worse for an artist's reputation than for one man to corner his works. Now that the Young corner has been let loose, it is safe to prophesy very different sums from yesterday's results That discerning dealer, Mr. W. B. Paterson, buying for himself, gave only 13gs for the subtle triumph in atmospheric gradation, "The Solent," which every critic admired when first exhibited. When Mr. R. A. M. Stevenson died an unfinished eulogy of Peppercorn's art was found among his papers—and Stevenson knew. In 1877 twenty-eight Raeburns fetched less than £5,000. The Young Peppercorns pathetically ranged between 5gs and 20gs. David Cox, who used to say that he hoped to live to see one of his pictures bring £100, was represented by "Rhyl Sands" at 135gs (Jackson); L. C. Müller's "Watercarriers at Cairo" brought 130gs (T. Permain). The rest is silence.

Meanwhile, at Robinson and Fisher's, a few more or less vintage pictures were sold. A version of Reynolds's "Simplicity," the property of Mr. Norfolk Baker, reached 530gs (Nicholson), and his "Miss Frances Shephard" 250gs. Other Reynolds portraits were: "Major-General Stringer Lawrence, Father of the Indian Army," 360gs, and a gentleman in red coat, 200gs (Tooth). Using his recondite knowledge, Mr. Hazell Vicars saw a Solomon Van Ruysdael in a river scene and boats, attributed to Van Goyen, and won it at 180gs. A decorative overdoor panel, by Fragonard, fell to Mr. Sabin at 115gs.



MILITANT AND NON-MILITANT.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE DAILY TELEGRAPH."

Sir,—Is the question of votes for women to be settled by men or women? Woman wants a vote! Man says she shall not have it. She is not denied

CTURE'S ROMANTIC HISTORY

ch has been written during the last three s regarding Rotherwas House, the his-l country seat of the ancient family of the hams, some two and a half miles out of ord. The recent sale of the house, the of its contents, and the adjoining estate used by the death of the last of the family, he entire property seems to have been first ased by a firm at a South Coast watering-who being in no special way attracted by sthetic and financial value of the contents house, without much ado proceeded to pass n to a well-known trading firm in Hereford.
three pictures and thirty-five engravings disposed of at the end of February last by n in London. Before that time, it is stood, a picture had been, for sentimental s, offered for £15 to distant connections Bodenham family, an offer that was not ed, and it was ultimately put up for sale ssrs. Puttick and Simpson's.
en submitted for auction, this panel, a ait of a Lady, 31in. by 23in., bore the in-ion across the left sleeve, in the lettering ut 1790: "Mary Tudor, Queen of Scot-When, however, it appeared in the sale-on April 8, the same day as the sale of the its of the Sneyd family ascribed to Sir a Reynolds, this obvious error had been ily corrected. It was now catalogued as a rait of Mary, Queen of Scots," by an un-n artist of the early English School, the rty of the late Mr. Charles Bodenham, of rwas. Being in a dirty state, its beauty red by a chocolate-toned discolouration light abrasures above and below the right t was started at £10, and, as stated in the ing Post at the time, was acquired for by Mr. A. H. Buttery, the well-known e expert. As soon as the solvent was ap-the false inscription came away, and careaning has shown that the panel is in an nt state of preservation, due in great part heavy coat of varnish placed upon it two ree centuries ago. Although the artist r signed nor dated his work, the few ex-to whom it has been shown, including Dr. länder, of the Berlin Gallery, believe they tise in it the hand of Holbein at the begin-of his first English period, about the year

ing previously painted several religious es, Holbein in England paid special atten-o portraiture, and in that year made the mily," on which was based the large picture collection of Lord St. Oswald at Nostell.

ands of Sir Henry Guldeford or Guildford ndsor are as hard in the modelling and as a pose as those in the present portrait and nporary pictures.
It seems impossible to assign the present uit to such other painters of the time as mes Corvus, Gerlach Flicicius, and Haunce owts, the work of art itself is the sole of our information. The choice of m offers no clue, and we must draw our sions from an analysis of Holbein's accepted characteristics, such as the facial appearance of the lady, the setting of the ear, the incisively-marked curves of the chin and the neck-chain, the delightful play of light on the mobile face, the almost imperceptible modulations of tone that lurk about the mouth, the peculiar arching of the eyebrows, the building up of the composition, the plastic treatment of the draperies, and the veracious portrayal of the lady against the plain green background.

It must be admitted that the identification of the sitter presents very many difficulties. Further, to revert to the misleading inscriptions already referred to, Mary Tudor was born only eleven years before and Mary Queen of Scots was born fifteen years after the date at which this picture must have been painted, according to the assumption I am now discussing. Again, the features of Mary of France, known to us from her inclusion in the left foreground of Paolo Veronese's "Cana of Galilee" in the Louvre, are quite different. Any inquiry affecting the Court of Henry VIII. naturally prompts the wish to discover a portrait of Anne Boleyn, of whom there exists in all probability no authentic portrait in oils by Holbein. She, however, had a "swarthy complexion, a long neck, a wide mouth, a bosom not much raised, and her eyes were black," and as the lady in the portrait has blue eyes and different features that identification cannot be entertained.

The present writer has not succeeded in finding any serviceable document. One hoped, but failed, to recognise the Rotherwas outcast in some such inventory as that of the Royal Collection in 1547, and to identify it with such an entry as "Item; a table (i.e., a panel picture) of a woman in a French hood, with a gown-like cloth of gold, and blue fore-sleeves." Nor do any of the Holbein sketches, extending from 1527 to 1540, in the Royal Collection at Windsor throw light on the mystery. This picture appears never to have been exhibited, engraved, or mentioned in any of the various topographical works and county histories of Hereford. In the present state of uncertainty as to the pedigree, real or fanciful, it is to the internal evidence of the painting itself, therefore, that we must turn for guidance. The lady is about twenty-three years of age, and seen at half length, and holds an open book in her hands. She is in full face towards the spectator, whom she regards with calm and contemplative gaze. In accordance with the fashion prevalent in England about twenty years after "the fat, uxorious giant" Henry VIII. came to the throne, she wears a French hood. It is of bright terra-cotta satin, the upper corners being delightfully puckered. A curved framework of black and gold encloses the arched hood, and the lower portion of it has a white edging, over which is set a chain of enamelled jewels. Her fair hair is parted down the middle and turned back over the ears. The sleeves of the black gown are narrow at the shoulders, and fit close to the arms for a few inches down; then they rapidly widen, until just above the elbow they become square and very full. They are gauntlet-like, slashed and puffed. The lower ends of the collar a concluding the inscription ests a possible clue to the

, or the family name, of the lady re was, in fact, a parish of More in the diocese of Hereford. Assuming the final word to be significant, it suggests the family of Sir Thomas More, whose crest was "A Moor's head affrontée Sable," while phrases somewhat similar to the inscription on the brooch occur in More's "Meditacions and Prayers." Although we might regard the word "more" as a rebus or play on the maiden name of the lady—she does not appear to be married—the motto of the More family, which was probably a Latin one, seems to be unrecorded. The seated figure in the brooch may well represent St. Cecilia, the patron saint of music, as she wears her traditional red dress amid the red and white roses gathered in Paradise, in accordance with the legend.

We know that Sir Thomas More was passionately fond of music, and it seems tempting to hazard the opinion that this portrait may represent the Lord Chancellor's third daughter, the "Cecilia Heronia Thomae Mori, Anno 20," of the Basle sketch, who married Giles, son of Sir John Heron, Master of the Jewell-House to Henry VIII. Nor is there any record that Holbein painted anyone else of the Christian name of Cecilia. But, unfortunately for this theory, the lady in the present portrait does not greatly resemble Cecilia Heron. The inscription in the jewel recalls the use in his designs for jewels which Holbein made of such dainty conceits as "Mi Ladi Prinsis," "Well Laydi Well," and "Bound to obey and to serve." The earlier provenance of this portrait will probably never be known, but it is to be noted that "A brooch with a gentlewoman luting, with a scripture above it," is included in the "list of jewels in certain boxes and coffers" that are specified in the Calenders of Letters of Henry VIII. under the date of 1528. Three years later Thomas Bodenham's name is mentioned in certain grants, and he was on the Commission of the Peace for Herefordshire. The romantic history of this portrait has its counterpart in the story told some three years ago of the valuable armour that was kept in a box in an attic at Holme Lacy, about three miles further out of Hereford.

MAURICE W. BROCKWELL.

THE SNEYD REYNOLDSES.

9 April 1913.

In October, 1752, Reynolds, who was then in his 30th year, returned from his long sojourn in Italy and set himself up in a studio in St. Martin's-lane. He soon became fashionable, and by 1760 was able to buy a mansion in Leicester-square, now (some say) the Reynolds Galleries owned by the veteran collector, Mr. Rutley. Yesterday, at Puttick and Simpson's rooms in the same square, and also closely associated with Reynolds, a few early works by the president appeared. Painted in 1757 they were of the St. Martin's-lane period, and a pair of them represented the two daughters of William Sneyd, of Bishton, attired in the costumes chosen by them when appearing at a county fancy dress ball. The theatrical costumiers of the period were dull dogs and provided attire which did not enhance beauty. Otherwise, or if the ladies had elected to put on their every-day gowns of the period, the portraits would have been more attractive to the market. Still Elizabeth Sneyd (who became the wife of the Rev. William Lloyd), trying to look giddy in Eastern costume, reached 720gs (Huggins), and Ann Sneyd, as somewhat gawky shepherdess, not taking Touchstone's advice to wear her body "more seeming," attained 580gs (Parkenthorpe). John Sneyd, of Bishton, in green coat, made 210gs (Huggins), and an early English school portrait of Mary Queen of Scots, the property of the late Mr. Charles Bodenham of Rotherwas, Hereford, 240gs (Buttery).

At Sotheby's, where, by the way, "Bijou Almanacs" are arriving in scores, a first state of J. R. Smith's Mrs. North, after Romney, realised £11 (Ellis and Smith).

THE ROTHERWAS HOLBEIN.

Times 28 June 19

The purchase en bloc of the Tudor panellin Rotherwas, described in The Times of Marc and May 22 of this year, has had an interesting se Among the few pictures at Rotherwas, the seat o Bodenham family, was one which found its wa Messrs. Puttick and Simpson's rooms in Liece square and formed lot 17 on April 8 last. It catalogued as "Early English school" and descr as a portrait of Mary Queen of Scots, "wea a black dress with slashed sleeves, and with broidered collar and cuffs, jewel pendant, and hol a book," a panel 32in. by 23in. This was purch by Mr. A. H. Buttery for 340 guineas. On the sl had been painted a century or so ago the r "Margaret Tudor Queen of Scotland." This ins tion, with a thick coating of copper-coloured var laid on some two or three centuries ago, has cleaned off, revealing what is unquestionab beautiful Tudor picture in the finest state of pres tion. The few experts who have seen it, an others Dr. Friedlander, of Berlin, Sir Walter strong, and Mr. C. F. Bell, of Oxford, prono it to be a splendid example of Holbein, pa about 1527.

The truth of the tradition, which clearly existe the Bodenham family, that this is a portra Margaret Tudor Queen of Scotland (1489- remains to be seen. In the meantime it is t hoped that Mr. Buttery will lend this extre important "document" in the early histor painting in England to the National Gallery.

In connexion with Holbein's portraits it ma mentioned that Mr. Edward Huth's splendid po of Sir Thomas More, painted in 1527, has rec been sold to an American collector at a very price.
